

NRA Named to Inc. 5000 List for Fifth Year

National Recovery Agency has earned a spot on Inc. Magazine's list of the fastest-growing private companies in America.

Harrisburg, PA, September 14, 2011 – National Recovery Agency, one of the country's leading providers of A/R Management and Recovery Solutions, has been named as one of the fastest-growing private companies in America by Inc. magazine for the fifth consecutive year. Inc.'s annual list ranking the top 5000 private businesses indicates significant accomplishments in the areas of innovation, resilience, and tenacity.

The Inc. 5000 is ranked according to percentage revenue growth over a four year period. The list itself represents a long-standing history of honoring business whose vision, dedication, and hard work have catapulted them into success. Steve Kusic, President and CEO, credits this success to their unique collection strategies for maximizing debt recovery in the shortest period of time for its clients.

"We continue to look for new ways to improve our clients bottom line", said Kusic. "There aren't many companies that use the same strategies and tools we use to recovery debt and for us it has paid off. It's a big factor in our growth over the past year. "

This year NRA has ranked 2584 which compliments a 90% growth rate over the past three years. NRA's continued ranking year-to-year demonstrates that the company's VISION 2014 plan, which promotes a controlled-growth strategy, continues to set the pace for achieving success within the Industry. NRA utilizes this plan to carefully balance increases in staffing, facilities, equipment, and technology in order to service its growing client base without sacrificing financial stability, customer service, or performance reliability.
