

National Recovery Agency Contributes to Volunteer of America by Donating Toys

December 22, 2010
Press Release

December 22, 2010

National Recovery Agency, a Pennsylvania-based collection and accounts receivable management company, today announced that the Company and its employees donated approximately $1,000.00 in toys to local children.

“The ultimate success of this program depends on the generosity of National Recovery Agency staff and their donations.” Said Steve Kusic, CEO of National Recovery Agency. It’s heartbreaking to think that some kids have so little and to put a twinkle in a few of their eyes is worth the effort. Once again, we are very proud of the charitable spirit of National Recovery Agency employees. Their deeds have demonstrated their sympathy for those less fortunate many times this year.

The goal of the Volunteers of America toy drive is to deliver through a new toy at Christmas, a message of hope to needy children. We know the smiles on children's faces and the appreciation from their parents, that the simple gift of a shiny, new toy can make a tremendous difference in the life of a child.

The Company, is also an active supporter of the United Way, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, March of Dimes, PA Food Bank and many other local charities.

